Master: Motivated Sequence example outline using only a few sentences (you should do a much long outline with lots of info).

A. Attention Grabber: Imagine that you are lying in a dark, gloomy hospital room waiting to find out if you will receive an organ that is crucial to your survival. Imagine knowing that there are 118,614 other people also on the same waiting list, and there were only 28,664 transplants completed last year. Your next breath may depend on an organ donation. However, you receive news that there aren't enough organs available for you to have a transplant. (REPETITION)

Transition: Unfortunately, lack of organ donors is a problem for many people.

B. Need to the problem: People are dying daily due to lack of organ donors. (ALLITERATION)

1. Every few minutes, someone is added to the organ transplant waiting list, and each day, an average of 11 people die from lack of organ donations. SOURCE
2. IRRESONANCE
3. SAD STORY + SOURCE
4. FEAR APPEAL: If we don't solve this problem, people will continue to die from lack of organ donations.
5. Summary reasoning statement.

Transition: So what is the answer to this problem?

C. Satisfaction to the solution: More people must be willing to donate their organs in order to solve this dilemma.

1. Organ donors can save up to 6 lives (it's like a quarter from an expert saying it so)
2. For every 11 organ donors, 104 lives could be saved. (like projected statistics of how this solution would positively affect the current problem)
3. evidence SOURCE
4. POSITIVE APPEAL/PHYSICAL NEEDS
5. Summary reasoning statement.

Transition: So what will the future look like if we do nothing? Or if we implement this solution if using a Positive visualization?

D. Negative Visualization: (quote a very long TL;DR about future picture if nothing is done.)
If people choose not to become organ donors, people will lose their lives as a result. You or your loved ones could, one day, be a part of the 118,614 people who need an organ donation. What if there is an organ shortage due to lack of donors? FEAR APPEAL.
