Introducción

La moda del teléfono móvil está alcanzando una cuota de importancia dentro de nuestra sociedad que casi nos parece imposible una vida sin él.

Sin embargo hasta el momento nadie se ha fijado a plantear los posibles efectos que puede llegar a provocar, e incluso el hecho que puede poner en peligro nuestra propia salud.

La utilización del sistema GSM le ha dado una personalidad propia al sistema móvil, pero a la vez la utilización de las microondas pueden provocar efectos irreversibles.

Tal vez sea posible que el gran volumen que ha alcanzado esta industria, algo más de 900 mil millones anuales, por eso que estas investigaciones no se profundicen todo lo que se debería, pero también es cierto que el avance en las dimensiones del aparato toda vez aparece una más pequeño y ligero hacen que nos acerquemos en exceso a la mayor fuente de emisión del móvil, la antena.

Legislación sobre la comercialización

En estos momentos en España no se reconoce el teléfono móvil como una fuente perjudicial para la salud, y por lo tanto la ley no refleja ninguna regulación en esta materia.

Sin embargo hay un apartado referido a emisión de ondas electromagnéticas que los fabricantes utilizan como escudo legal porque, según ellos, ningún móvil comercializado sobrepasa los 1.5 vatios por kilo, que siendo el límite de seguridad recomendado en una tasa de absorción "potencia energética absorbida por el cuerpo" de un máximo de dos vatios por kilo de tejido.

La única medida adoptada por el gobierno viene reflejada en un proyecto de Reglamento en el que será obligatorio el no exceder de los límites de exposición a emisiones admitidos por la Organización Mundial de la Salud, para controlar, entre los operadores presentando un informe anual con las certificaciones de los modelos fabricados en ese período.

Antenas

Otro de los vacíos legales que nos podemos encontrar en este sentido es la inevitable colocación de repetidoras de ondas, que se colocan sobre todo en las zonas y muchas veces sin que algunas veces lo sean.

En España sólo existe un proyecto de regulación, Ordenación Ambiental de las Instalaciones de Radiocomunicación (Ordenación de Cataluña), y es que:

1º) La distancia mínima a la que debe estar situada una antena de 100 W a 1000 W será un radio de 18 metros.

2º) Para antenas sucesivas tipo telefonía móvil de potencia inferior a 1000 W, las medidas de seguridad serán un paralelogramo, limitado a la altura de la antena en la dirección de máxima radiación, de las siguientes dimensiones: largo 10 metros, altura 4 metros y ancho 8 metros.

Problemas asociados a las ondas

Las ondas de radio consisten de campos eléctricos y campos magnéticos oscilantes que hacen que los electrones de la antena vibren y seorganic. Los movimientos de estos electrones producen una corriente eléctrica que el
