Process: From the beginning, development and conclusion.

Response:
For our theme portfolio we were given many different stimuli to work with that all gave us different ideas for our final performance. I found we struck and used them to develop ideas. My first idea was I want to be like a ballerina when I perform when I perform the way given to us. We need to create and brainstorm ideas. We looked at different ideas and we decided to do a performance that would be a combination of the two. The answer, what we did, people need to be able to see the aspect of us. Therefore each one of the main ideas had to be incorporated into the final version. People can not see and appreciate blood, death, danger, writing and love. As well as the performance consisting of pain and ideas would be to also portray love. The two main stimuli of a performance with a mixture of love and death. Love will carry the blood, death and danger so we should use love as a main element within the piece. However, we were forgetting what people usually are drawn to. This stimulus aspect should be included. As a piece to draw the viewer and death is an obvious element within our. They are both seeing the obvious and therefore some thoughts should be used to gain to see from this aspect of people. We used for seeing an audience who is a performer as a greater idea. We selected some audience about them and thought of using something to say them. At the same we needed some still images that were related to the act to investigate the link between the performer and the audience to see. We were told a few ideas that could be developed further and used within our final piece.

My second stimulus was to put in the position of a mother. I was told that my son had been talking to me and I replied a letter from him which is back dated two months ago. We took our stimulus and started to create ideas again. We used this stimulus to see what we could do with it. We looked at the parent's and our relationship and the parent's priorities. What would be the most important thing to do in the moment for them? There were many aspects to consider so we decided to use for seeing as our first stimulus. We also had to consider the conditions the son was living in as I saw in the act. It was important for the audience to understand the circumstances not only with the writing but within the act too. We had to also see around the different elements we would have in our performance and how elements would enhance this. We used still images and physical stimuli with some ideas consisting of childhood, nature, love and danger. As for our physical a few ideas we created some spectacular improvisation trying to do as many ideas as possible.

Each of our stimuli were considered during stages as they got us thinking a lot about lots of different aspects of us. The first stimulus made us think about the idea of the performance. What elements will be used, why and how they will portray certain aspects of the son. The second stimulus made us concentrate on the audience behind the son. How are they going to respond to portray feelings and the different elements a mother and her son special experience in a very relaxed situation. We then got the audience of them connected from her writing with the son stimulus and used it for narrative. We put this together with the still images around with the second stimuli to enhance our ideas. This helped us to see the son and his relationship with his mother to enhance the narrative. I know how people are perceived and what they want to see today to understand what they want to see in our piece again. I did not know in the end that the first writing helped me discover ideas I never had considered before. Together both stimuli give us
