Othello literary criticism essay question

Examine the way Shakespeare presents Iago, Othello, Desdemona and their relationships in his play in the first act of the play. What ideas does he give of the world which is to follow?

From the very beginning of the play 'Othello' Shakespeare presents the friendship between Iago and Othello as a lie. Shakespeare makes us see that Iago is only pretending to serve Othello for his own ends and following this on, Othello completely trusts Iago and is able to speak in confidence with him. At the very start of the play, Shakespeare shows the audience how to make an event to Iago or Othello their, subtle or less-subtle for them. From the moment the play starts, Shakespeare gives us a negative impression of Iago. Shakespeare presents Iago as a villainous and false-hearted character. In contrast, Othello has been presented as an upright and generous character. In the play we are able to see his calm reaction to a very heated disagreement and this to the audience conveys a positive impression. Desdemona is presented as a very feminine and elegant character that is not too confident just 'half of a girl'. Shakespeare creates many dramatic lines in the play which create suspense and makes the play more exciting for the audience, through Iago's conversations with Roderigo and Desdemona. Many of Shakespeare's plots highlight the very high importance in Shakespeare's day of a woman being 'chaste'. This was very vital for women in Shakespeare's day. This means that a woman must not have any other sexual relations with anyone else. Iago also was worried also not to be kept as a virgin and while she is married, she must not have sex with another man apart from her husband. If any of these rules were to be broken, she would become a bad person and would be difficult to be accepted again by her family. Iago used this belief in the mind of Othello as a way to make Othello have a bad opinion of Desdemona and believe that she was the one being false and unfaithful. This was how he made the biggest lie which was to be unfaithful to show us that something was more likely and exciting will happen. In the first scene of the play 'Othello', Shakespeare presents Iago as a very untrustworthy and deceitful character. He says 'I am not what I am'. It is not very clear as what Iago means as he does not make it specific but we can still understand something. It seems as if it is a riddle meaning to Roderigo that Iago is a type of man that just can not be asked. We also remember this quote in our minds simply because it is short, and strongly repeated. At the very start of the play, Iago's character is kept constant. He stays deceitful and two-faced. We can see that this is true as he states 'I hate the Moor', he says the word 'Moor' to describe Othello. He then later
